Introduction/Directory

The table of contents list on the previous page can serve as a checklist for performing Alaska legislative history searches. This guide will describe the materials, where they are located, and in what form.

The Alaska Legislature and its agencies have for years been working to make legislative records easily accessible and available to the public. The legislative teleconference system, begun in 1978, has 21 Alaska Legislative Information Offices (LIOs) statewide. The Alaska Legislative Computer System (ALECSYS), begun in 1981-82, includes the text of the Alaska Statutes, bills and resolutions, session laws, journals, and committee minutes. A microfiche program for committee records (bill files, and minutes prior to 1982), set up in 1986, places microfiche in research libraries around the state. And, since 1997, legislative electronic information is available on the Internet, at the Alaska State Legislature Home Page.

The Internet (Net) now contains a wealth of Alaska legislative history information. This guide mentions what's on the Net, the location and form of material prior to when it starts on the Net, as well as explains those materials not available on the Net.

Important sources of legislative history information are (area code 907):

Alaska Statutes (AS)

Session laws that added or amended a certain section of the Alaska Statutes are listed at the end of that section. You may need to read the full text of all the laws listed to find which one or ones added or amended the specific words or section you're interested in.

Also check any notes following the AS section. Revisor's notes, editor's notes, and notes as to "effect of amendments" and "legislative history reports" can be very helpful.

Additional Information
If you want to know what the law was at a certain time or research a section which has since been repealed, check the older versions of the AS.

To find how the AS read at a certain time with "annotations," (session law citations, notes, and court opinion citations) see the paper copy*:

Session Laws of Alaska (SLA)

The first page of a session law shows the number of the bill which became that session law. This bill number is the number you need to locate legislative history materials.

Be sure to read the session law to check for (1) any amendments that relate to your particular statute under consideration, and (2) any bits of temporary or special law that may be important, such as those sections stating "purpose", "findings and intent", or "applicability". (Temporary and special law sections of a session law are those parts which do not have AS section numbers preceding them; they won't be codified, but rather placed in AS under "temporary and special acts" section.)

Additional Information
(See p. 18 for budget session law information)

Available (see table p. iii)

Bill History and Journal Index

The Bill History and Journal Index lists for each bill all House and Senate floor actions, and the pages of the House and Senate Journals on which these actions are mentioned. It shows among other things who sponsored the bill, which committees the bill was referred to, and whether there was a letter of intent. This is available for every legislature 1975+.

Prior to 1975, a section in the back of the House and Senate Journals lists those pages in the journals on which a bill is mentioned, but you must look at each of those pages to find out the bill action and the date on which it occurred.

Available (see table p. iii)
- Sets for recent years (years vary): at rest of LIOs (generally 1985+); rest of law libraries; Loussac Library and U. S. Courts Library.

Internet (see p. 20)

Final Status of Bills

The Final Status of Bills lists all bills in the two-year legislature by subject, by bill number, and by sponsor, and tells the final version of each bill.

The Final Status can help you discover if an identical or similar bill was introduced in the other house. If so, part of the committee discussion on the issue may be under the other bill number. To find a possible duplicate or related bill, check the Final Status under the subject of your bill: a duplicate bill will be from the other house but with the exact same title (unless one has been amended extensively). Look for a duplicate bill if the bill being researched was a controversial one and it either went through a major committee "too fast" (in only a day or two) or didn't go to a logical major committee at all.

Research may lead back to a previous legislature. It sometimes takes several legislatures for a bill on a specific subject to get passed, and there will have been discussion and modifications during each session. Bills "die" at the end of each legislature but may be reintroduced the next legislature - usually with a different bill number.

Available (see table p. iii)

House and Senate Journals

The House and Senate Journals are the daily legislative record of floor actions for each body. These include all motions made and votes taken on each bill. The floor debate is not transcribed, but tapes are available (see p. 11).

Check all House and Senate Journal entries especially floor amendments, letters of intent, the governor's transmittal letter (always printed in the journal at the first reading of a governor's bill), and the governor's return letter (for bills signed into law or bills allowed to become law without his signature). Also, for bills that became law by the legislature overriding the governor's veto, look for the governor's veto message.

Additional Information
Journal Supplements contain material related to floor action on bills, such as sectional analyses and commentary on bills, long committee reports, and fiscal notes. Supplements -- House, Senate, or Joint -- are numbered separately starting with "1". To locate a supplement in the journal, go to the journal page or the date listed for it in the index and then page forward until you find it.

Fiscal notes contain the estimated costs to state agencies if a proposed bill were to become law. They are in the journal supplements, 1977-1986; in separate volumes with the journals, 1987-1988; and on microfiche, 1989+. (See pp. 18-19 for more fiscal note information.)

Available (see table p. iii)

All Versions of a Bill

Check all versions of a bill to see if the section you are interested in was included in the first version or added or amended later by a committee substitute or floor amendment. This could narrow down your search and save you time and effort.

Sometimes a section added in a later version may have been taken from a different bill on the same subject that year. To easily check for this (in those bills l983+) use the all versions of bills infobase for that legislature, and search for the key words of the section. This will show what other bill(s) those key words were in. You may want to then research the bill the section came from since much of the committee discussion of the topic may be on that other bill. (For bills 1976-82, see p. 21)

Additional Information

Bills on paper and microfilm have underlining "___" to show proposed additions to current law, and brackets "[ ]" to show proposed deletions. These markings make it easy to see what the proposed changes of each bill version are.

Bills on the Net have underlining and brackets 1993+. Use of underlining started in 1993. Use of brackets started in 1983 (the one exception is the 1991-92 legislature when instead of being bracketed deleted material was CAPITALIZED following the added material, and deleted numbers merely followed the added numbers).

Bills on paper and microfilm (and the Net: 1995+ BASIS pdf version only), include page and line numbers. This can be helpful since committee hearings and floor sessions refer to changes in bills by bill version, page number, and line number.

(See p. 18, and p. 19 for budget bill information.)

Committee Minutes

Check the committee minutes for discussion on the understood purpose of the bill or amendment.

Committee minutes are summaries of discussions and actions in a committee. They vary from extremely brief to almost word for word. If you need to know exactly what was said in a meeting, you may request a copy of the committee tape. Transcripts (verbatim description of meetings) are seldom made.

Committee minutes are available from all committees, and in a consistent form only after the start of the legislative computer system in 1982.

Additional Information
To find minutes before 1982 (when most start on the Internet*) check the paper copy or microfiche to see if there is a minute index. If there is no index you must page through the committee's minutes between the dates the bill went into and out of committee. The committees a bill went to and the dates in and out are shown 1959+ in the indexes in the back of the Journals, and 1975+ in the House and Senate Bill History and Journal Index. The date a bill is "read the first time" is the date it goes into the first committee. The date that committee reports it back to the House or Senate (with recommendations such as "do pass", "do not pass" or replace with "committee substitute") is the day it goes into the next committee.

Minutes prior to 1982 often have additional materials such as meeting agendas, witness registers, and committee reports. All these additional materials, 1967-1981, are included in the minute microfiche. Because minutes 1982+ are on the Net (and therefore don't need to be microfiched) any attachments to them are available only from whomever has the paper minutes -- mostly the Alaska State Archives. Finance Committee minutes through 1996, often have "attachments" of materials presented at the meetings. (See pp. 18-19 for Finance Committee information.)

For the most part, committee minutes from 1982+ are available on the Net. However a number of minutes are not on the Net, but are available in paper copy at the Legislative Reference Library (this is true mostly for the years 1983-88). Also, Senate Finance Committee has many meetings 1997-99 for which no minutes were created or only incomplete minutes. See Alaska Legislature Committee Tapes and Minutes Index, 1982-2004 for lists of meetings held, and whether there are minutes on the Net, paper copies, transcripts, tape logs, or just tapes.

Committee minutes are in:

Transcripts when available are either in the LLIB collection, in committee files (special committees mostly) or with the paper copy of the minutes. Any Finance Committee transcripts are with the Finance Committee minute binders.

Committee Files
Committee files contain material created by or collected by a committee during its deliberations. Most are on bills or resolutions referred to the committee, and contain bill drafts, amendments, fiscal notes, correspondence, sectional analyses, research material, and testimony. A few files on issues discussed by the committee (executive orders, confirmation hearings, overviews of departments, and briefings) may be found at the beginning of the bill files. Be sure to check the entire list of a committee's files to make sure you've found all the files on your bill or subject.

Special committees are legislative committees, commissions, or task forces set up for a limited time to accomplish a specific task: to study an issue and report on it by a certain time, or to be an additional committee of referral for bills on a specific topic, such as oil and gas or fisheries. Files are similar to those of standing committees (the permanent committees) but may include research and meeting files.

Included with the special committee (SCOMM) files are a few collections of subject files, created by legislative committees, on topics of ongoing interest, such as workers' compensation and oil and gas.

Committee Audio Recordings

Tapes of committee meetings are worth listening to if the minutes are not in enough detail or if you need to know exactly what was said during a meeting. It is usually best to review committee minutes before requesting tapes so that you can request just those tapes that discuss the section or aspect of the bill you're interested in.

There may be tapes available for committees for which there are no committee minutes or bill files.

Additional Information
Digital audio recording by the legislature of all committee meetings started in 2005, and is available on the Internet 2005+.

Live audio on the Internet of all committee meetings started in 2002, as part of public television legislative coverage, Gavel to Gavel. Audio is archived online for January 2002+. This is not the official recording of meetings (that is done by the legislature) and may be incomplete or contain material added by the commentators.

Tape requests: Finance Committee tapes, 1982-95 must be requested by tape number from the Alaska State Archives. Find the tape numbers from the minutes on computer. (See p. 17 for conference committee tapes, and pp. 18-19 for Conference Committee on the Budget tapes.)

Available

Internet – January 2005+: digital audio recordings by the legislature. See Alaska Legislature Home Page: http://www.legis.state.ak.us/basis, and choose "Committee Minute Selection".

House and Senate Floor Session Audiotapes

Audiotapes of floor sessions are important when changes or debate have taken place on the floor of the House or Senate. The journals will indicate sessions where amendments were made or attempted and where debate was likely to have occurred.

Additional Information
The House and Senate started taping their floor sessions in 1975; no tapes are available prior to that year.

Live audio on the Internet of all floor sessions, Gavel to Gavel, started in 2002. Audio is archived online for January 2002+. This is not the official recording of floor sessions (that is done by the legislature) and may be incomplete or contain material added by the commentators.

Available (see table p. iii)
Tapes - Current year: originals sent each day to the Alaska State Library, kept until June or July, then originals sent to the Alaska State Archives and copies sent to the Anchorage Law Library.
- Prior years: 1975+, at the Alaska State Archives; 1975-2004, at the University of Alaska, Fairbanks; 1982+, at the Anchorage Law Library (for listening only, but may be checked out); last 2-3 years, at the Alaska State Library.

(Legislative Reference Library has no floor tapes.)

Internet - live audio, plus archived audio January 2002+. See Alaska Legislature Home Page: http://www.legis.state.ak.us or Gavel to Gavel: www.ktoo.org/gavel. (Recordings may be incomplete -- not the "official record")

Index – 1975-2003, at the same locations as the tapes (and at the Legislative Reference Library)
Videotapes of Television Coverage of Legislature

The legislature funded television coverage of its sessions from 1977 to 1989. Coverage included important floor debate, committee meetings (including some conference committee meetings), and interviews with legislators.

Public television coverage of the legislature, Gavel to Gavel started in 1996. The series is produced by KTOO Television and funded by a private corporation and the city of Juneau. Coverage includes floor sessions, some committee hearings, and a weekly evening call-in program, Alaska Talks, where legislators or groups testifying before the legislature answer questions.

Gavel to Gavel started streaming live video of the legislature on the Internet in 2002. In cooperation with ACS, it streams live video of all floor sessions and some committee hearings.

Additional Information
An index created by the Alaska State Library provides access to the videotapes by subject, personal name, bill number and date for 1977-1981; and only by subject, personal name and date for 1982-1989. No index, and few tapes, are available 1996+.

Available (see table p. iv)

Legislative Reference Library LLIB Collection

The LLIB collection contains entries for the library's Alaska legislative history materials. The catalog includes reports written by or contracted by the legislature, or requested by the legislature from other state agencies (not annual reports), and some transcripts of legislative meetings.

Additional Information
(see p. 21)

Available
Paper copy · 1953+ : Legislative Reference Library
- Some of these legislative reports and transcripts are also held at other Alaska libraries.

Internet · 1953+, catalog (see p. 20)
Department of Law Bill Drafting and Bill Review Files

Bill drafting files are created for all the governor's bills. Bill review files are created for virtually all bills that have passed and are to be signed or vetoed by the governor. If a bill proposed by the Governor is passed, the bill drafting and bill review files are combined.

Important bill reviews 1988+ have become Department of Law Memoranda of Advice/Attorney General Informal Opinions.

Available
Paper copy · 1974+ Legislative Bill Drafting Files
1969+ Legislative Bill Review Files

Contact the Department of Law (465-3800) for drafting files for the last 12 years, and review files for the last 7 years. Contact the Alaska State Archives (465-2270) for earlier files.

Office of Governor Files

The Governor's Office has always requested introduction of certain bills, tracked them and lobbied for their passage. The governor's legislative or subject files can be helpful for bills from earlier years for which little other information is to be found. Files available include those of Territorial Governors (1909-1958).

Available
Contact the Alaska State Archives (465-2270).
Other Executive Branch Files

State agencies, which are affected by a bill and consulted during the deliberations on the bill, sometimes keep legislative files or subject files. These files might include the agency's testimony or position papers and letters by citizens, groups, and federal agencies. These are most helpful for earlier years when little else is available. Some executive branch files date from the early 1900's.

Available
Contact the Alaska State Archives (465-2270).

Legislators' Legislative Files

Several legislators have donated their legislative files to the Alaska State Archives. Other former legislators have donated their papers to the University of Alaska, Anchorage, Archives or to the University of Alaska, Fairbanks, Archives. The Alaska State Archives accepts only those files related to a legislator's public office, while the University of Alaska Archives accept all categories of a legislator's "papers".

Newspapers

Newspaper accounts of interviews with legislators about a bill before the bill is passed may discuss the understood intent of the bill or the problem the bill was addressing and why.

Available
Microfilm - all Alaska newspapers: at University of Alaska, Anchorage and Fairbanks; and Alaska State Library.

Legislative Reporting Service and Alaska Reporting Service

Legislative Reporting Service: This commercial service, 1959-1993, provides the only index/subject access to bills from 1959-1974. It also occasionally contained some additional information not provided in the journals.

Alaska Reporting Service: This weekly report, 1959-1970, put out by the publisher of the Legislative Reporting Service, covers activities in all branches of state government. It sometimes contained detailed coverage of committee meetings when no other is available. There is no index. You need to page through the issues between the date the bill was introduced and the date it was passed into law.

Available (see table p. v)
Paper copy - at University of Alaska, Anchorage and Fairbanks; Alaska State Library and Legislative Reference Library.
Conference Committees

Conference committees are seldom recorded in any form. The Conference Committee on the Budget is the exception: it is recorded and indexed (1971+).

To locate conference committee materials ...

Check the list of committees with materials on microfiche (Appendix A). Conference committees with materials are listed as follows:
< minutes, 1965-82 -- before the standing committees;
< files, 1967+ -- at the end of the standing committees;
< tapes (photocopies of), 1970-82 -- with the special committees following the standing committees.

Check the list of committees with tapes and minutes, 1982-2004 (Appendix B). Conference committees with tapes and minutes are listed with the special committees following the standing committees.

If a bill was sponsored by or was referred to a special committee, check that special committee's (SCOMM) list of files on microfiche. Some special committees included conference committee minutes, transcripts or files.

Check LLIB for minutes and transcripts. (see p. 8 and 13)

Check videotapes index for videotapes. (see p. 12)

Some conference committee (CC) tapes (1970's-80's) are not listed as a separate group of tapes, but are part of another committee's tapes -- often the committee in whose room the CC was held. Check which legislators are on the CC (in journal or bill history/journal index). Check their committee assignments (in first volume of journal for that year). If any chaired a committee (preferably one which had discussed the bill) then the CC may have been held in that committee's room. Check that committee's tapes between the dates the bill went into and out of CC and at the end of the committee's tapes for that year. (For pre-1982 bills look at index/microfiche photocopies of tapes and tape jackets; for 1982-04 see tape lists in Committee Tapes and Minutes 1982-2004 Index.)

(See pp. 18-19 for Conference Committee on the Budget.)
Finance

Finance Committee records differ from those of other standing committees mostly because of the nature of budget documents and the appropriations process. *

See Alaska State Legislature Budget Guide: The Swiss Army Knife of Budget Handbooks by Legislative Finance Division, for an explanation of the appropriations process and historical resource documents (on Legislative Finance Division Home Page at http://www.legfin.state.ak.us).

A few things to note
Through 1997, parts of the budget bills and budget session laws are on the Internet, but not all. The pages of departmental allocations, appropriation items, and appropriation funding sources are, until 1998, available only on paper and microfilm. Complete budget bills are on the Net: 1998+ BASIS pdf version only; and 2002+ Basis text version and Infobases. Complete budget session laws, including the Governor's line item vetoes, are on the Net: 2003+ BASIS pdf version only.

Fiscal notes are on the Internet in an abbreviated form 1993-98: showing only the next fiscal year and no analyses. Complete fiscal notes are on the Net 1999+: BASIS pdf form. (See paper or microfiche for complete fiscal notes, 1993-98.)

Additional materials are kept with the paper copy of the minutes (and are not on microfiche):
< Materials presented at Finance committee meetings, 1982-96, are included with the minutes as attachments. (Such materials 1997+ are put in the bill files and microfiched).
< Conference Committee on Budget materials and index, 1982+ are in a binder with the minute binders. Materials include minutes, log notes, motions sheets on budget areas, and fiscal notes.
(Pre-computer minutes, 1967-82, and any materials with them, are on microfiche; but minutes and the materials with them 1982+ are not microfiched since the minutes are on computer.)

* Starting in 1995-96, Finance Committee records have the same type of indexes, tape-minute lists, and microfiche as other committees. This is because, in November 1995, responsibility for maintenance of Finance Committee records was transferred from Legislative Finance Division to the Legislative Reference Library which was responsible for all other committees' records.
Alaska Legislature Electronic Information

Alaska Legislature electronic information is on the Internet in BASIS and the Alaska State Legislature Infobases Online. In the listings below, an underline indicates that the information is available in one system, but not in the other.

BASIS (Bill Action and Status Inquiry System) contains information on each bill 1993+: a list of all floor actions on the bill, with links to journal entries, committee minutes, all versions of each bill in pdf form 1995+, session laws in pdf form 2003+, and fiscal notes. BASIS does not have text search features (although you may be able to use the "find" feature on your web browser). This information is found using the "bill search" link on the legislature's home page.

Alaska State Legislature Infobases Online is text searchable, and consists of infobases for the Alaska Statutes (unannotated), session laws, journals, all versions of bills and resolutions, committee minutes, and Legislative Reference Library catalog (LLIB). This is found using the "infobases" link on the legislature's home page.

Additional Information

ALECSYS (Alaska Legislative Computer System) Infobases, which is not on the Internet, contains the same infobases as the Infobases Online, but with an easier to use interface. It is on the legislature's local area network (lan) to which all legislative offices have access, and the public may access at public terminals in the Legislative Information Offices. (Use the Start menu and select "Programs", "ALECSYS Infobases"). The Alaska Statutes (annotated) is available only in the ALECSYS Infobases.

Alaska Legislature Home Page has links to audio and video of floor sessions and committee hearings (Gavel to Gavel).

The Legislative Reference Library has materials that may be of help in your legislative history search, but that aren't cataloged in the LLIB database. These include:
- donated materials not yet added to LLIB, some from early years.
- computer print-outs of AS sections in 1976-82 bills (see p.6 for use).

Library staff may be of help by asking you what you have searched so far and suggesting what else may be available.
