TRIP REPORTS

Crevasse Rescue Workshop

Dave Hart

While reading the March issue of Scree, I saw Mike Miller's crevasse rescue workshop being offered at the Matanuska Glacier. In preparation for the upcoming summer climbing season, I decided to take his course and brush up on my skills. So many other people had this same thought that several would-be participants, including myself, were recruited to help instruct.

We gathered Saturday, April 8th under mostly sunny skies that always seem to bless the Matanuska Glacier. After dividing into groups of four to six, we headed out onto the glacier to practice proper roped glacier travel techniques. Learning self rescue techniques and pulley systems kept the groups busy the rest of Saturday.

Saturday night found many of us continuing the tradition of dinner at the Long Rifle, although the Alaska Health Department's posted warning of fecal contamination in their water supply did cause trepidation for some.

After dinner we had hoped to play a few hands of hearts before returning to the campground. Unfortunately, we were summarily ejected from the Inn when we tried. They were "a restaurant and did not allow card playing!" Their lack of hospitality, even while serving contaminated water, will certainly make me reconsider patronizing them in the future.

We still wanted to play some cards before bed so we retired to the Matanuska Glacier Lodge and found a much friendlier atmosphere. Midway through our game, the owners came rushing in saying that one of their mares just gave birth to a colt. Being the city folks we were, we asked if we could come see the new baby horse. When we got there, they asked us if we would help carry the newborn to the barn. How hard can that be? We soon found out. Imagine trying to carry a 100-pound water balloon dipped in Vaseline for a distance of 200 yards. Terry, displaying extraordinary chivalry, was finally able to hoist the slippery colt around his neck and carry it to the barn. We made it, but I think Terry was planning to burn his shirt.

Sunday found all groups again out on the glacier practicing pulley systems, self rescue ascending systems, and even a bit of ice climbing. We were all headed back to Anchorage by 6:00 P.M. As was hoped, all participants came away with more knowledge and experience than when they arrived. More importantly, at least for the instructors, no one was injured. I, for one, am looking forward to next year's workshop already. An extra ice axe was found after the course; call Mike Miller to identify it and claim it if you lost one.

Hut Raising Event

The pre-fabrication of the new MCA hut will take place on the weekend of May 20-21. The location will be at the home of Max Franklin and Willy Hersman at the end of Elderberry Drive in Wasilla. Work will begin at 10:00 A.M. each day. Directions are on the map below. A list of needed materials is on the following page. If you can donate something on the list, contact Mike Miller 243-6521.

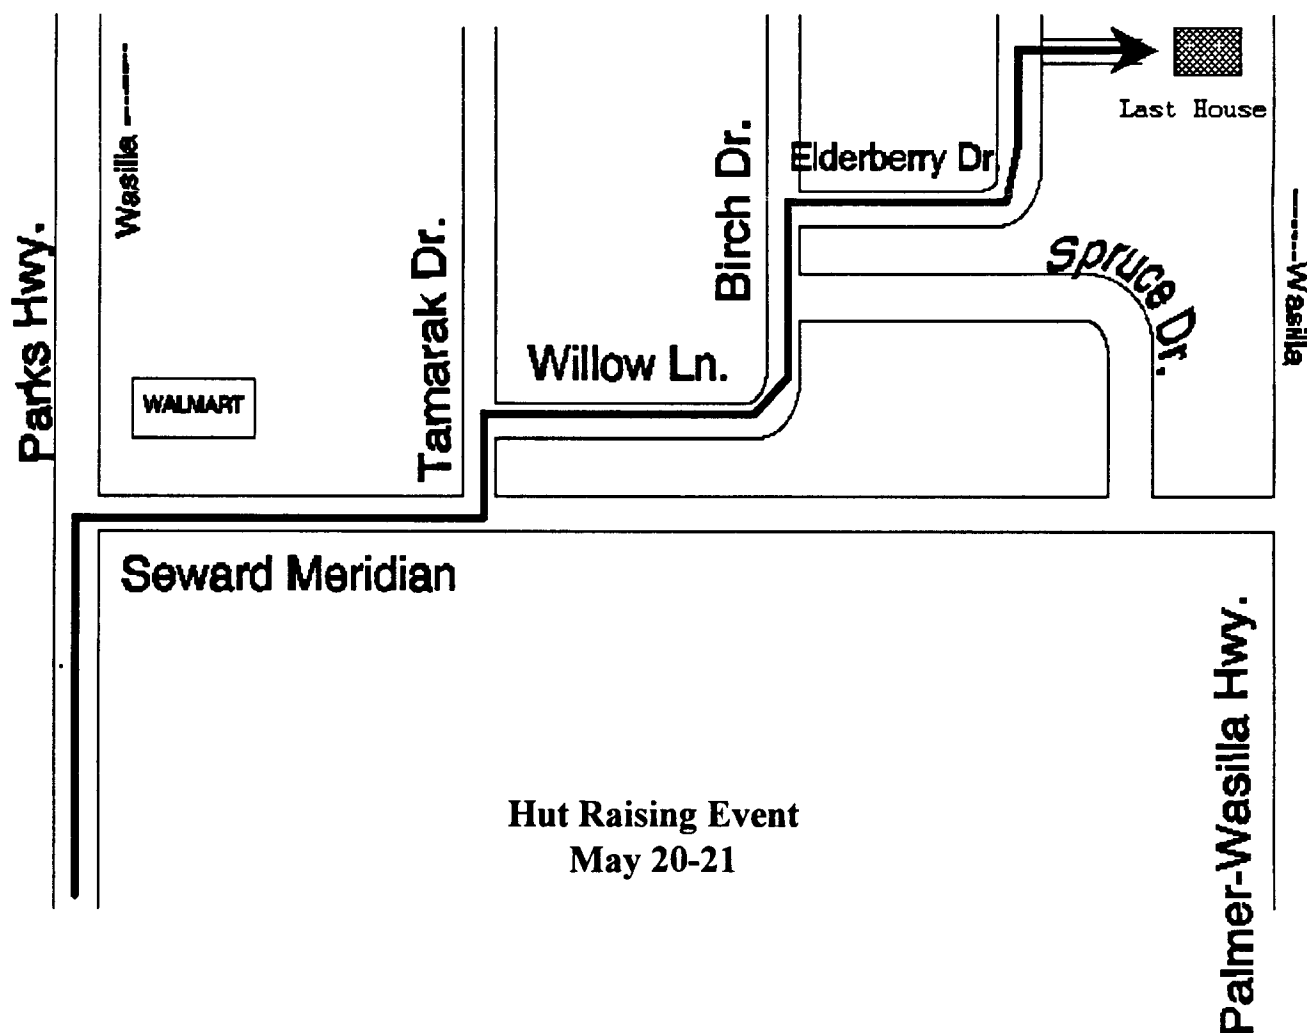

The hut will be built, painted and subsequently dismantled and marked for reconstruction at the site, near the head of Moose Creek, in July or August.

Please come out and help, there is a lot to do.

Call for Stories

Anchorage writer Bill Sherwonit is working on an Alaska mountaineering anthology, which will include historical and contemporary stories from around the state. The book will have a couple of Denali "classics," but the focus will be beyond Denali and he'd like to have all the major ranges represented, if possible. Of special interest are climbing stories from Southeast Alaska and the Wrangell-St. Elias, Chugach, and Brooks ranges.

The literature on Chugach mountaineering - at least the sort that would appeal to a general audience - seems especially limited. Any MCA members who know of accounts in Scree or elsewhere, are asked to contact Sherwonit at 345-1882, or write to him at 7601 Soldotna Dr., Anchorage 99516. Chugach stories are of special interest, but good, readable stories from anywhere in the state will be considered.

COMMITTEE REPORTS.

Training.

Jonathan Rose announced there will be another leadership class to be held on April 4, 6, & 8, 1995. The last class was very enjoyable and everybody learned a lot.

Mike Miller announced he will be leading a glacier travel / crevasse rescue class at the Matanuska glacier on the weekend of April 8 -9, 1995. Participants will be meeting at 10:00 am each day at the glacier and should bring all of the mandatory glacier gear, sunny weather and firewood.

Hiking & Climbing.

Don Hansen announced that he is continuing to look for potential trip leaders. If you are interested in leading a trip, please contact Don.

Mike Miller announced that there are two lists at Alaska Mountaineering and Hiking which club members might find interesting. The first is a list of trips which people would like to lead. The second is a list of trips which people would like to go on. So next time you are thinking of going on or leading a trip, stop by AMH to see if someone has a similar idea.

Mike Miller also announced that he has received a rather cryptic note and map from past MCA president, Dan O'Haire. Mike interprets the note to mean that Dan will be leading a trip across the Sargent Icefield in June. There will be a sign up list at the April general membership meeting.

Parks Advisory

An update on last month's announcement regarding a Chugach Park Board member who is upset with the fact that MCA has constructed 3 parks in the park. Mike Miller announced that Tom Meacham has sent a letter to Al Miner of the Chugach Parks Board regarding the cost of building and maintaining the huts.

Huts

Mike Miller announced that MCA is still planning on putting two huts in this summer. Volunteers and materials are still needed for this project. Contact Mike if you have any materials to donate.

Library

Joe Kurtak announced that the MCA library is in good shape. However, he would like to locate a good lockable bookcase for some of the more valuable books which the library has acquired. Please contact Joe if you know of one.

OLD BUSINESS

None.

NEW BUSINESS

None.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

A gear swap is planned for the April meeting. Members are encouraged to bring any gear which they would like to sell or swap. Additionally, the April slide show will be an accumulation of slides from all of you. Please bring a few slides (10-20) to share with the group.

Mike Miller announced the University of Alaska - Anchorage / Alaska Wilderness Studies program will be conducting a First Responder Course in May, 1995. Please contact the AWS program at 786-4066 if you would like more information.

Ron Rickman provided an excellent slide show on his 1985 climbing trip to the country of Bhutan. Thanks Ron!

Respectfully submitted,
Mark Flannum
