I am concerned with 2 aspects of this project. First the gas pipeline. The Cook Inlet gas field is declining and provides little assurance of a long term energy source. Additionally, this pipeline will cause damage to the many fish streams that it crosses. The pipeline will not benefit Kuskokwim River villages and should not be permitted. The second concern I have is about the 2300 acre tailing impoundment. The company claims they will monitor and keep this toxic waste safe in perpetuity. There is not a single company or government on earth that has been around forever. To make a claim that Donlin gold will be around for even 100 years is unsure at best. Mining companies have a long history of extracting profits and leaving toxic waste sites behind for the government to clean up. If they project is to proceed Donlin Gold should be required to come up with an alternative energy source as well as waste rock facility.
