To whom it may concern. I urge you to reconsider permitting this 2000' open pit mine in rural Alaska. It has the potential to impact the salmon of western Alaska. The King Salmon return was so low last year, they had to close it to subsistence fishing. It there is even a slight loss of King Salmon it will be devastating to a region that relies heavily on subsistence. Also it will will affect me, as a sports fisherman. If salmon do not return to the Kusko. tributaries, I will not be able to enjoy fishing these great waters. Thank you for allowing me to comment. Sincerely, John Polonowski
