The Exxon Valdez oil spill of 1989 was a tragedy. I was a kid when this occurred and was saddened to see scenes of dying mammals and fish in the area. That is why it pleases me that work is being done to acquire land damaged by the spill and setting it aside for permanent protection in Kenai Fjords National Park.

From what I read, I see that the Port Graham Corporation and other private interests hold land within the spill zone within or around Kenai Fjords. Purchases of lands for national park inclusion have put a "silver lining" to this environmental tragedy. I encourage you to continuing purchasing as much land as possible before it is too late.

Someday I plan to visit Alaska, and will surely visit this area. Hopefully through your dedicated efforts and wise land purchases, I will not see any of the effects of this oil spill. This will be a sure sign that the works of your committee have made a difference.

Sincerely,

Mark Van Hornweder

This letter is to ask you to work to obtain land acquisition agreements with Port Graham & other Native Corporations that own land within National Parks in the spill zone. I visited Kenai Fjords and some other Nat. Parks last summer and each park is in several ways a national treasure for all Americans to enjoy. The acquisition of land by the parks will help to preserve the environmental, historic, cultural attributes of the land. Native Americans, no less than other Americans, would be able to use the park.

Transferring land to Park ownership is good for the land, the Park Service, and the Native Americans. Let's do it.

Dear Trustees,

We are very pleased that some attempt to restore wildlife destroyed by the horrendous Valdez oil spill.

Please pursue land acquisition agreements with Port Graham and other Native corporations that own property within national parks in the spill zone.

Thank you.

Dear Exxon Valdez Oil Spill Trustee Council,

I seen an article about your recent purchase of 30,200 acres of private land that will be added to Kenai Fjords National Park. This article was on page 13 of National Parks Magazine, the May/June 1997 issue. I'm not a member of this group, I got this issue from the free magazine table at my local library. The article also stated that your council purchased lands, conservation easements, and timber rights on 421,000 acres in areas affected by the spill. It is ironic that these good land purchases was financed by the oil spill of the Exxon Valdez. I want to thank you for doing a very good job with the $900 million from the civil settlement with the Exxon Corporation. Keep up the good work!!!

I hope your council will pursue land acquisition agreements with Port Graham and other Alaska Native Corporations that own property within national parks in the spill zone. I wish the U.S. Government was doing this, but the political will power isn't there. I'm glad that your council is doing this job, and thinking about more land purchases within the national parks in the spill zone area. Also, in the same issue of this magazine, there is a beautiful picture of Kenai Fjords National Park

I'm 1/2 Hawaiian, and someday I will travel to Alaska and visit these areas.
I would like to thank your Council our generation and future generations to

Gentlemen:

I am writing to thank you for the actions you have taken to add 30,200 acres of privately held lands to Kenai Fjords National Park. The $14 million you used to buy this acreage is money well-spent.

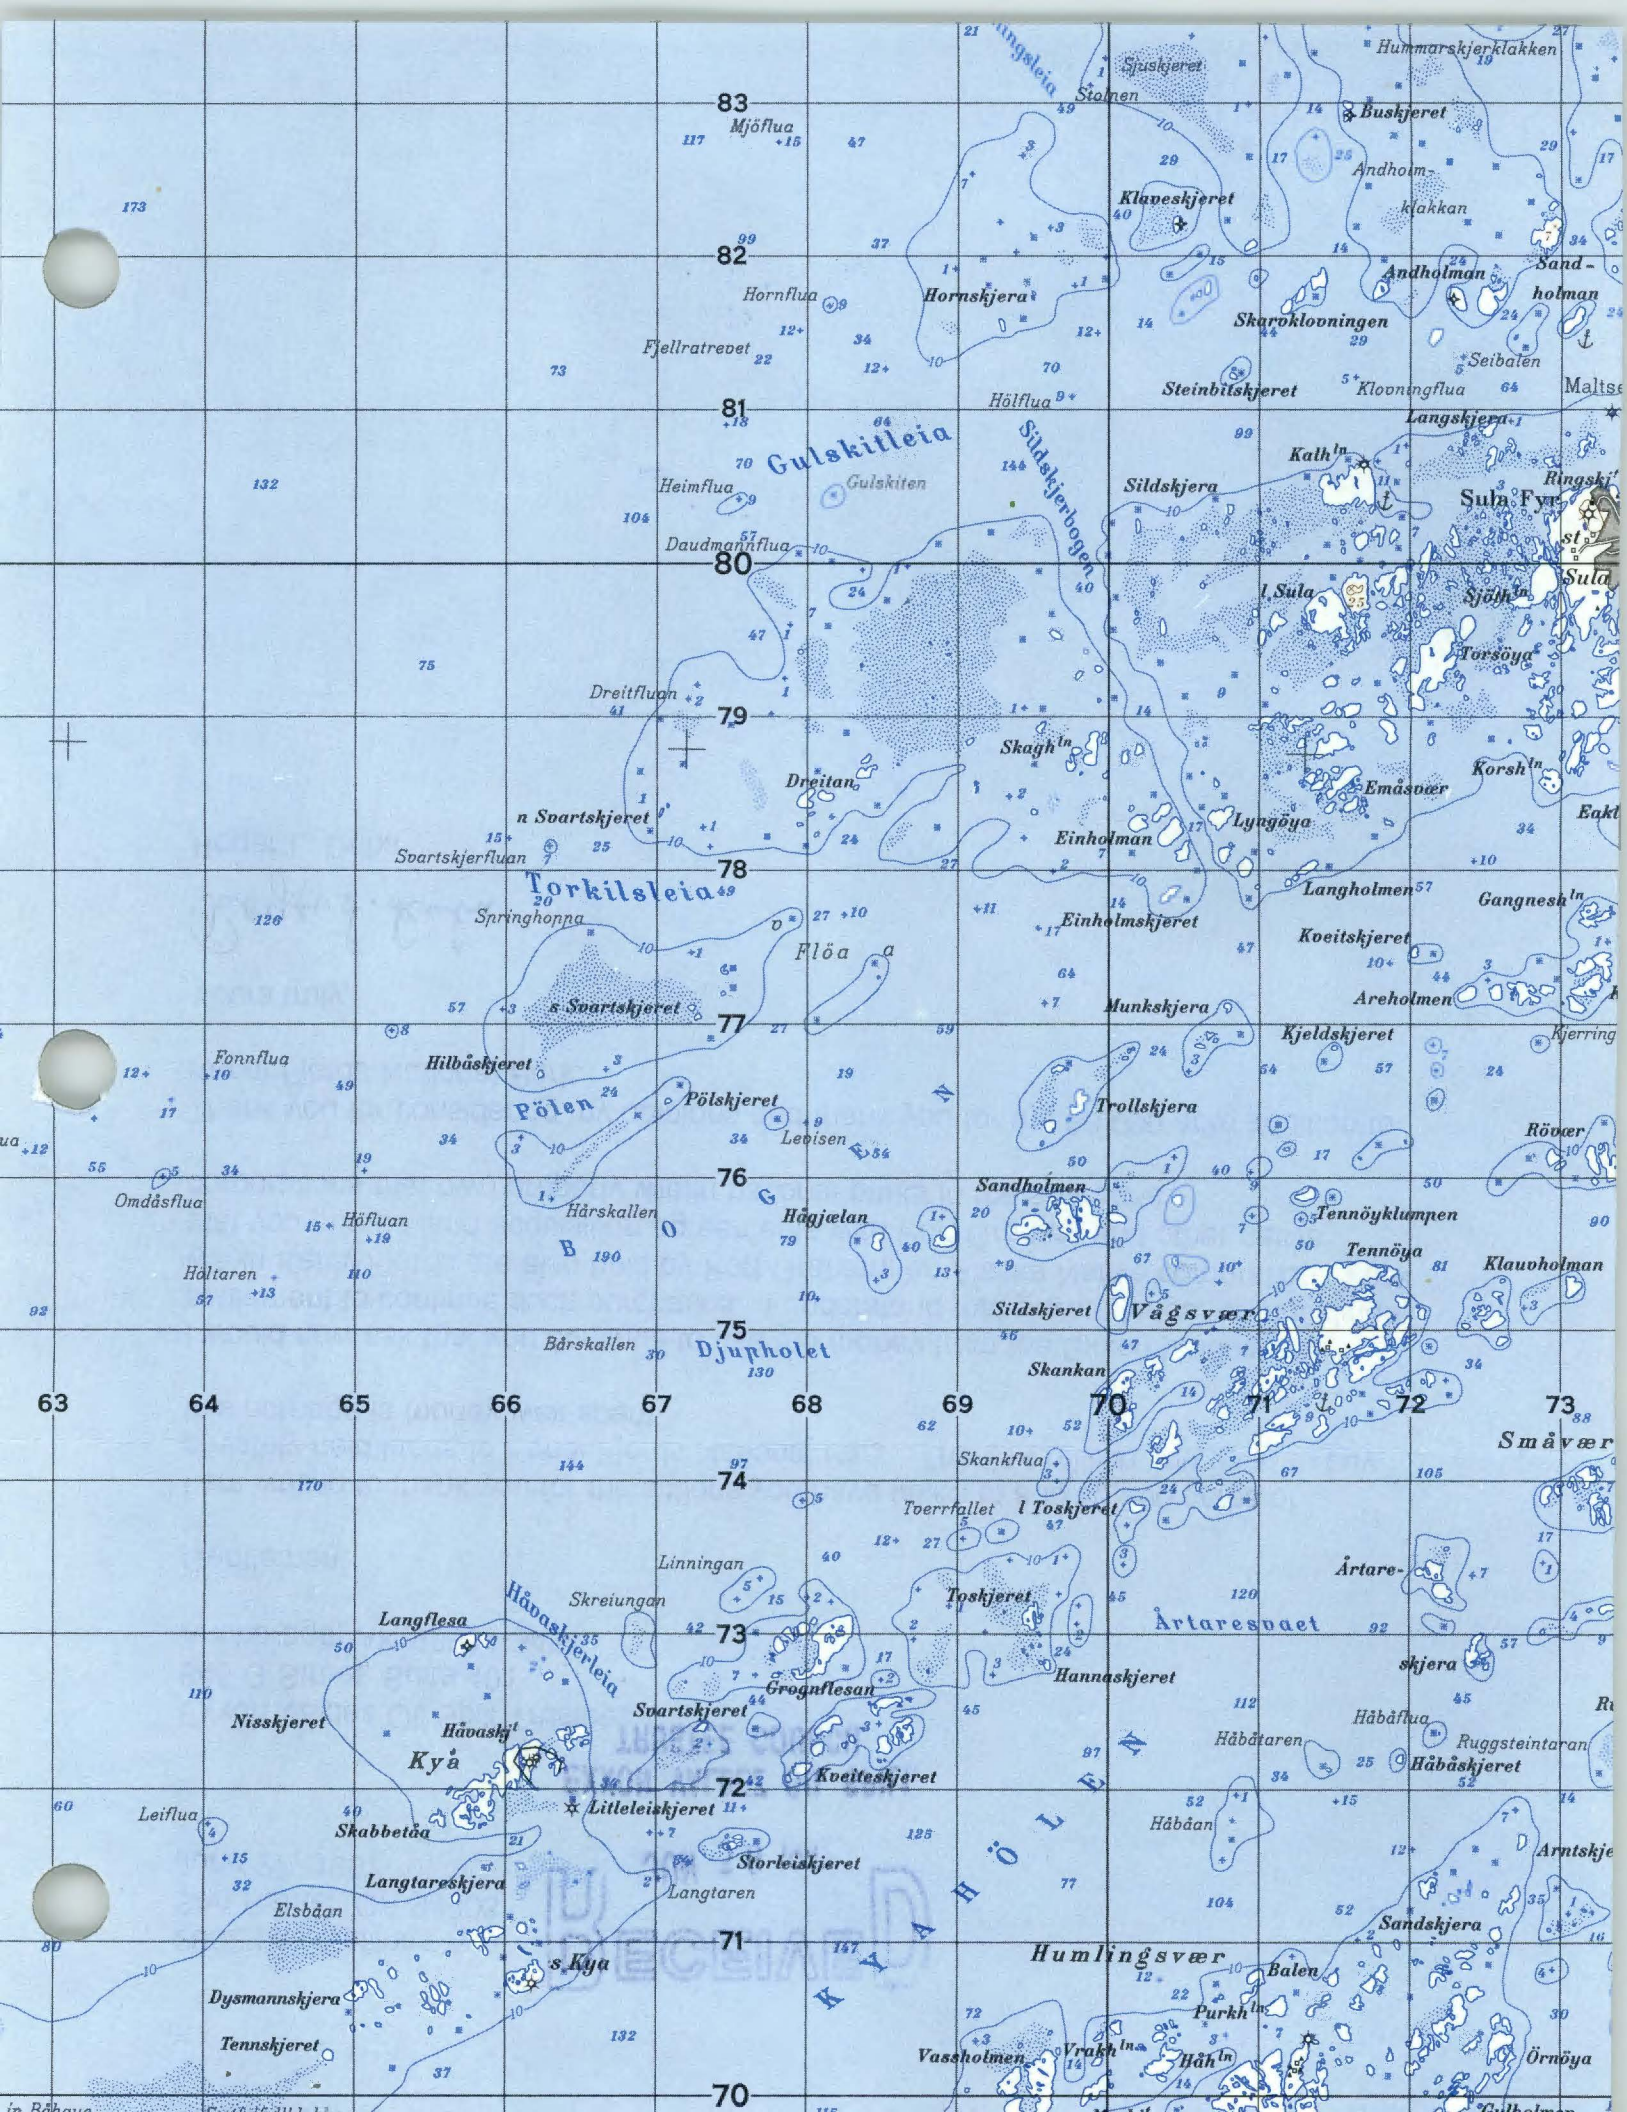

I would now ask that you continue to use the money from the Exxon Valdez spill settlement to continue such purchases. I understand that private lands, or inholdings, within Kenai Fjords are also held by Port Graham, an Alaska Native corporation. I ask that you pursue land acquisition agreements with Port Graham and other native corporations that own property within national parks in the spill zone.

Thank you for considering my opinions and thank you for the 30,000 acre addition to Kenai Fjords National Park.

Enough damage was inflicted on this ecosystem in the 1989 spill. The least we can do is provide a safe haven for what survived. The National Park System can provide this refuge! And this may lead to a stronger ecosystem than ever before!

I'm writing in regards to the private land currently held by Port Shalam, an Alaska Native Corporation. This land is located inside the Kenai Fjords National Park near Seward, Alaska. I think it's essential that you pursue more land acquisitions inside the park as well as in the spill zone. Exxon needs to do a great deal more to rectify the devastating aftermath of the Valdez spill. Our ecology is too delicate, and too precious to handle this type of devastation. I strongly urge the trustees to purchase this land, and others inside the park, to let the park grow and become even more beautiful.

Gentlemen:

You are to be commended for the purchase of 30,000 acres on the Kenai Fjords coastline held by EBC. Transferring ownership to the National Park Service helps complete one of the most unusual jewels in our park system.

We now need to direct our attention to the portion of the Kenai Fjords currently owned by a Native American corporation. That portion, near the town of Port Graham on the opposite side of the park, is also eligible to be bought with funds from the Exxon Valdez settlement.

Acquiring these parcels for Kenai Fjords will make the park and its resident wildlife more secure in the coming years.

I urge the council to negotiate similar agreements with Port Graham and other corporations that own critical parcels within the damage zone.

Harlequin ducks, harbor seals, and other species harmed by the 1989 Exxon Valdez oil spill will find a lasting refuge in 30,200 acres of privately held lands that will be added to Kenai Fjords National Park.

In a $14 million deal approved by the Exxon Valdez Oil Spill Trustee Council, seven tracts within the park will be transferred to the National Park Service, ensuring protection of their rocky points, coastal wetlands, and forested slopes.

The council, backed by $900 million from the civil settlement with the Exxon Corporation, is charged with restoring the natural resources damaged by the oil spill through scientific studies and habitat-protection initiatives. To Date, the Exxon Valdez Oil Spill Trustee Council has purchased lands, conservation easements, and timber rights on 421,000 acres in areas affected by the spill. The Kenai Fjords land acquisition is the first within a national park.

Six of the seven parcels were marred by oil after the spill, harming seabirds, marine mammals, and intertidal flora and fauna. An evaluation and ranking of available lands found that the Kenai Fjords tracts offer extraordinary opportunities for the restoration of pink salmon, marbled murrelets, sea otters, and other species, in addition to cultural and archaeological resources damaged by the spill.

Private lands, or inholdings, within Kenai Fjords are also held by Port Graham, another Alaska Native corporation.

I ask that you pursue land acquisition agreements with Port Graham and other Native corporations that own property within national parks in the spill zone.

In My opinion, the Exxon Valdez Corporation should take every step possible in helping to convert the land owned by Port Graham and others to the National Park System.

It should seem overwhelmingly evident that the dwindling expanses of pristine beauty be put in the hands of those most worthy of preserving them.

As an unsuspecting pumper of Exxon gas for some years, it would be refreshing, if not surprising to see a large oil corporation make the environmentally correct move.

Dear Sirs:

I am writing thank you for your recent actions to protect Kenai Fjords National Park from commercial development and to ask you to go one step further to ensure the future of the park.

Your recent decision to purchase the 30,200 acre inholding, owned by the English Bay Corporation, will ensure permanent protection for these seven irreplaceable parcels. The transfer of these tracts from private ownership to the National Park Service at no cost to the American taxpayer is a tremendous victory for the park, for wildlife conservation and the American people. These lands, though damaged by the Exxon Valdez oil spill, hold great promise for the restoration of pink salmon, marbled murrelets, sea otters, and other important species.

I urge you to take the next logical step and enter into negotiations to purchase the inholdings held by the Port Graham Corporation and other native corporations that own property within Alaska's national parks. This may be our last chance to save these national treasures.

Dear Sirs/ Madams:

I thank you for your work to the point in protecting over 421,000 acres of land affected by the Exxon Valdez oil spill. I am very happy to see the transfer of 30,200 acres to Kenai Fjords National Park from English Bay.

I would also like to see you pursue land acquisition agreements with Port Graham, another Alaska native corporation, and any other native corporations holding land interests in the area. All this will be of great benefit to the park and the species who live there.

Thank you for your work.

Dear Trustees,

Thank you for protecting several of my very special places including extremely important habitat on Kodiak and Afognak Islands, recreation land on Shuyak Island, and recreation land north of Homer soon to include Overlook Park.

I would like to encourage you to continue your negotiations with Afognak Joint Venture to protect what remains of some very valuable salmon and bear habitat surrounding Pauls Land and Laura Lake on Afognak Island. I have spent the best trips of my life exploring the Kodiak Island archipelago each summer for the past eighteen years. I have often marveled that our political leaders had the foresight to protect the Kodiak National Wildlife Refuge and have as often been distressed to see what has happened to the inholdings and adjacent land. We now have a last chance to protect what remains of a once-magnificent forest. Please pursue this opportunity to save this important habitat for the bears, the salmon, and people like me who thrive on its well-being.

Thank you for your consideration.

It has come to my attention that some of the monies coming from the Valdez settlement is being used to add some lands to the Kenai Fjords National Park. Hooray! On my most recent trip to Alaska I cruised that Park and was thrilled to see the diversity of wildlife and scenic beauty.

I hope that some more of the money will be used to purchase the EBC coastal lands. Its great to see that the National Park and some unique wildlife are being protected and that the native people are the beneficiaries also.

Dear Council,

I am a history teacher and mother from Texas. I endeavor to teach my students and my son to learn from and appreciate our country's rich heritage, wildlife, and environment. However, this is becoming increasingly difficult as much of its existing wildlife and environment are affected by man. Some of this can, though, be prevented.

I am writing to congratulate you on using money from the Valdez settlement to purchase acreage on the Kenai Fjords coastline. I do, though, urge you to negotiate similar agreements with Port Graham and other corporations that own critical parcels within the spill damage zone. Not only is it important to preserve such national treasures as exist in Alaska, but it is equally important to take a stand in proving to the nation's children that we believe our heritage is important enough to seek ways to protect it even if it causes our enterprises to be more difficult.

Thank you for your consideration in this issue.

Sincerely,

Deann Lee

18. April 1997.

To the Trustees:

This is to express my pleasure and to congratulate you do have reached an agreement to purchase 30,000 acres on the Kenai Fjords coastline from the Native Alaskan Village corporation EBC, an absolutely critical coastal habitat. Transferring ownership once and for all to the Natl. Park Service helps to complete the only fjord system in the US, a most unusual jewel in the whole Park Service.

Similar agreements should be negotiated with Port Graham on the opposite side of the park and other parcels owned by Native Alaskan corporations critical within the spill damage zone.

Restoration of the resource, so horribly damaged by the Valdez spill would be greatly furthered by extending the park to its "desired" boundary - to remain permanently free from development.

Dear Sir or Madam,

I am writing on behalf of the National Parks and Conservation Association in regards to the lands within the Kenai Fjords National Park.

First of all I want to commend the Council for completing the arduous task of acquiring these crucial lands in Alaska. It is very significant that this area will now belong to the National Park Service. The park and all of its resources will be much better off from now on.

Also, I want to encourage the trustees of this council to negotiate agreements such as this for other areas of the spill zone, such as Port Graham. Environmental restoration of these areas is critical and would best be expedited by the Council successfully acquiring these lands.

Please work hard and swiftly at these negotiations. We all appreciate it. Thank-you for your time.

Dear Council Members,

It was with great interest that I read about your February agreement to purchase 30,000 acres on the Kenai Fjords coastline from one of the Native Alaskan village corporations with funds from the Exxon Valdez settlement.

I heartily applaud your efforts to acquire these parcels for the Kenai Fjords national park. This coastal habitat is critical to the successful protection of the wildlife in this area of Alaska. My husband and I have made 4 trips to Alaska in the last 8 years and have visited the Kenai Fjords national park on three of those trips. We took the full-day Kenai Fjords boat tour and enjoyed seeing the wildlife in the bay and along the fjords, especially the sea otters and bald eagles!

The article indicated that there is some coastal land on the opposite side of the park that would be advantageous to permanently protect critical wildlife habitat. That land is near the town of Port Graham and is within the spill damage zone. I urge you to negotiate similar land acquisition agreements for this parcel and other critical parcels owned by Native Alaskan village corporations within the spill damage zone.

Best regards,

Cynthia

Re: Aquisition of land within Kenai Fjords

I recently heard about the 30 000 acres of land on the Kenai Fjords coastline which will soon be transferred to the National Park Service. After several years of negotiations the agreement has finally been approved using money from the Exxon Valdez settlement. That is fantastic - congratulations. I appreciate your persistence, perseverance and hard work. This success will secure precious wildlife and make a life long difference to our Parks. Thank you.

Please don't stop there. I appeal to you to please negotiate similar agreements with Port Graham and other corporations that own critical parcels within the spill damage zone. Please continue your hard work as previously.

Yours sincerely

Dear Council,

As an informed and appreciative citizen, I would like to congratulate you on concluding the purchase of 30,000 acres on the Kenai Fjords coastline . Acquiring these parcels for Kenai Fjords will make the park and its resident wildlife much more secure in the coming years.

Please continue these invaluable efforts of adding land within the spill zone to the National Parks. I believe that this will be the most effective way of returning the land to its most productive use. Please negotiate similar type agreements with Port Graham and other corporations.

Dear Sirs:

I am writing to congratulate you on concluding the Exxon Valdez settlement by purchasing 30,000 acres on the Kenai Fjords coastline held by EBC. Kenai Fjords includes the only fjord system in the U.S., plus coastal ecosystems, icefields, and rainforests, and all the wildlife they contain. Acquiring these parcels for Kenai Fjords will make the park and its resident wildlife much more secure in the coming years.

From the tragedy of the Exxon Valdez, an opportunity has arisen to permanently protect critical habitat for the public and provide Native Corporation shareholders with financial resources for their future. I urge you to negotiate similar agreements with Port Graham and other corporations that own critical parcels within the spill damage zone. I am referring to the other portion of Kenai Fjords currently owned by a Native Alaskan corporation, near the town of Port Graham on the opposite side of the park. It is within the spill damage zone, and therefore, is also eligible to be bought with funds from the settlement. Restoration of the resources so horribly damaged by the Valdez spill has always been one of the goals of the settlement fund. Extending the park to its "desired" boundary, so that it remains free from development, would be an ideal way to meet this goal. I appreciate the time and effort you have put into this process. Great job!

Dear Council Members,

April 5, 1997

congratulations on concluding the deal to purchase 30,000 acres on the Kenai Fjords coastline! This coastal habitat is absolutely critical to wildlife. Transferring ownership once and for all to the National Park Service - and the American people - helps complete one of the most unusual jewels in our park system. But the job is far from finished. We now need to direct our attention to the other portion of Kenai Fjords currently owned by a Native Alaskan corporation. That portion, near the town of Port Graham, on the opposite side of the park, is also within the spill damage zone, and, therefore, is also eligible to be bought with funds from the settlement. Restoration of the resources so horribly damaged by the Valdez spill has always been one of the goals of the settlement fund. Congratulations on your success in purchasing 30,000 acres within Kenai Fjords National Park from the Native Alaskan EBC Village Corporation for transfer to the National Park Service. This necessary transfer will substantially improve the protection of park wildlife and other resources for the future.

Please work for the successful negotiation of similar agreements with Port Graham and other native corporations elsewhere in Kenai Fjords within the spill-damaged zone.

Extending the park to its desired boundary would be an ideal way to compensate for the horrible resource damage caused by the Exxon Valdez spill.

Thank you very much for considering my input.

I WOULD LIKE TO PERSONALLY THANK YOU FOR YOUR EFFORTS IN OBTAINING THE 30,000 ACRES WITHIN THE KENAI FJORDS NATIONAL PARK FROM THE EBC. THE TRANSFER OF THIS LAND OWNERSHIP TO THE NATIONAL PARK SERVICE IS A GREAT STEP TOWARD THE PRESERVATION OF OUR WILDLIFE IN THIS AREA. THANK YOU ALL!

EVEN THOUGH I HAVE NEVER BEEN TO ALASKA, AND I KNOW LITTLE ABOUT ALASKAN AFFAIRS, I DO BELIEVE IN DOING ALL WE CAN--EVERYWHERE--TO PROTECT OUR NATURAL ENVIRONMENTS AND WILDLIFE.

PLEASE CONTINUE EFFORTS IN NEGOTIATING SIMILAR AGREEMENTS (LIKE THE TRANSFER OF LAND OWNERSHIP DESCRIBED ABOVE) TO OBTAIN THE PORTION OF KENAI FJORDS NEAR THE TOWN OF PORT GRAHAM AND OTHER AREAS WHERE CORPORATIONS OWN PARCELS WITHIN THE SPILL DAMAGE ZONE.

SINCERELY,

Dear Council Members:

Kenai Fjords National Park is unquestionably a jewel in the American landscape. We know of its uniqueness and beauty first hand. We visited the Fjords for the first time five years ago and we are returning for more in a few months.

The recent agreement with the Native Alaska village corporation, EBC, to purchase coastal lands within the Park boundaries was an important undertaking. We commend the Council for pursuing this course of action. This brings Kenai Fjords National Park one step closer to being free of in-holdings.

We urge the Council to continue this process by actively pursuing negotiations with the Native Alaska corporation near Port Graham as well as other corporations to acquire additional in-holdings within the Exxon Valdez oil spill damage zone. The Alaska coastline may never fully recover from the oil spill, but actions like this will help insure the security of Kenai Fjords National Park.

I wish to congratulate you for acquiring parcels of land within Kenai Fjords National Park. This is great news for the environment. My only hope now is that you continue to negotiate similar agreements with other corporations such as Port Graham - expanding the park so it remains free from development.

Again I say thank you, and good luck in your future ventures.

Dear Exxon Valdez Trustee Council :

I am writing to thank you for concluding the deal for acquiring additional lands for Kenai Fjords National Park. This is a significant step for the preservation of our natural treasures for generations to come. It is wonderful to know that Kenai Fjords, which includes the only fjord system in the United States, is expanding its borders as a National Park. I hope to someday visit the park that has such a pristine reputation of coastal ecosystems, icefields, and rainforests.

I would like to encourage you in negotiating a similar agreement for acquiring the other portion of the fjords, near Port Graham. Since it is within the spill damage zone, making these parcels an addition to Kenai Fjords National Park would be an ideal way to use more of the settlement fund. It is of concern to me that resource and wildlife restoration, from the Exxon spill, is the only priority for these settlement funds. Again thank you and keep up the great work!

I am writing to you to thank for your recent agreement with EBC which resulted in the purchase of land for the Kenai Fjords National Park. This is exactly the type of arrangement that you should be doing and I appreciate the effort you have made to get it completed.

While this was a great agreement, there is more that needs to be done. Other lands are vulnerable near the park. Agreements are needed with Port Graham and corporations nearby to secure these lands as well.

Please do what you can to protect Kenai Fjords National Park by purchasing additional lands near the park.

Dear Mr. Madam:

It has come to my attention that with the agreement of its Native Alaska

At this time I ask the council to pursue other lands within the "Valdez" spill damage zone that are eligible to be bought with funds from the Exxon settlement. Specifically, I'm referring to land near the town of Port Graham, on the opposite side of the park. I realize that the restoration of its resources so horribly damaged by the "Valdez" spill has always been one of the goals of the settlement fund. Purchasing more available land to extend the park boundaries would help attain this goal.

Once again congratulations on your land acquisition work thus far

I am writing this letter to applaud your efforts in acquiring the Kenai Fjords coastline land for the National Park Service. That type of effort seems to be exactly what the funds from the Exxon settlement were meant for. It is wonderful that at least something positive can come from that not so distant tragedy.

I ask that you don't stop with that one acquisition. I have not had the resources to visit Alaska to this point in my life but deeply look forward to seeing what may be the only unspoiled wilderness left in the United States. Please allow that dream to come true for me and thousands, maybe millions of other individuals by acquiring other lands in the Kenai Fjords area. Dear Sirs:

We are writing to congratulate you and to ask for more additional action on behalf of the natural resources of Alaska.

We congratulate and thank you for your recent actions to use money from the Exxon Valdez settlement to purchase Native Alaskan lands on Kodiak Island and within the boundaries of Kenai Fjords National Park. These acquisitions are two of the finest actions on behalf of our national environment in recent years. They help to insure the continued security of the wildlife and spectacular landscapes of Kodiak Island and Kenai Fjords. In addition, your actions benefit the economic situation of Native Alaskans in a sustainable, "environmentally friendly" manner.

We ask you to build upon these successes by concluding similar arrangements to protect the Karluk River area on Kodiak Island and the "Port Graham Lands" along the coastline of Kenai Fjords. Completing the protection of the Kodiak National Wildlife Refuge and Kenai Fjords National Park are worthy goals that can be achieved through the actions of the Trustee Council. We urge you to act soon.

Please keep us informed as to further progress.

Exxon Valdez Oil Spill Trustee Council
645 G Street, Suite 401
Anchorage, Alaska 99501-3451

Dear Sir or Madam:

It has come to my attention that with the agreement of the Native Alaskan owners, some crucial land within Kenai Fjords National Park will soon be transferred to the National Park Service. I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate the trustees for concluding this deal. Acquiring these parcels for the park will make the park and its resident wildlife much more secure for future years.

At this time I ask the council to pursue other lands within the "Valdez" spill damage zone that are eligible to be bought with funds from the Exxon settlement. Specifically, I'm referring to land near the town of Port Graham, on the opposite side of the park. I realize that the restoration of the resources so horribly damaged by the "Valdez" spill has always been one of the goals of the settlement fund. Purchasing more available land to extend the park boundaries would help attain this goal.

Once again congratulations on your land acquisition work thus far, and thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely

Mark S. Kearney

To Jim Ayers, Director of the Exxon Valdez Oil Spill Council and its six trustees:

I'd like to express my concern over the future of the Kenai Fjords National Park lands. As I understand it, there is a very real possibility that much of the Park is to be turned over to the Port Graham and Narwalek Native Corporations as a result of the Native Claims Settlement Act of 1971. If this happens, these now protected lands would be open for development. This would not only alter the near pristine state they are in now, but could also threaten the marine life that is so closely connected to the Park. We already know the future of the sealions in southcentral Alaska is at risk. More boat and land traffic would not help bring back their numbers. The Exxon Valdez oil spill weakened the fragile chain of life on the outer coast as well as some of the fjords. We must continue to protect and preserve these unique lands that so many marine species depend on.

Seward has witnessed Kenai Fjords National Park grow and develop as a positive addition to the health and economy of the people here. Many make their livelihoods from the visitors that come to enjoy the Park. And, the visitors leave with an experience that probably will never be duplicated. I count myself among the lucky ones to have experienced an overnight trip there. Watching a Minke whale swim just offshore of my camp and feeling the excitement as a huge bull sealion trailed behind my kayak are images and feelings I will never forget.

Kenai Fjords National Park is everyone's to enjoy and watch over. It must remain that way for future generations of people and sealife. I hope the Trustee Council sees it that way too and uses its financial resources to insure the future of the Park as we know and love it now.
