2003 MARINE SCIENCE CONFERENCE TO BE HELD

More than 400 people are expected at the 2003 Marine Science Conference at the Hotel Captain Cook in Anchorage, January 13-17. Entitled Marine Science in the Northeast Pacific: Science for Resource Dependent Communities, the conference will showcase the results of recent research by the GLOBEC, Steller Sea Lion Investigations, Gulf Ecosystem Monitoring (EVOS Trustee Council), North Pacific Research Board, and Pollock Cooperative Conservation programs. The first day and a half of the conference are geared to the general public, although anyone can attend the entire week of talks, workshops, meetings, and video showings. A detailed agenda can be found on the EVOS Trustee Council's website at www.oilspill.state.ak.us
