McKinley observed that the winds were strong out of the Turnagain Arm of Cook Inle t and this was certainly so for us. The group moved to a more sheltered picnic area about five miles nearer Anchorage. There was plenty of food, firewood, misquitoesandsfun. THERDEREI RD FALLS

The hountainmering Club od alaska had a very good time on their first outing of the season with a hike into Thunderbird Palls on Sunday, kay 3.

hany in the group were Chechakoes and stood up well to their first real attack by Alaskan mosquitoes met at the entrance of the trail. However they soon outdistanced most of them.

The trail was in the last stage of breakup with several muddy spots to be skirted. There is still much snow might up to the Falls. A new railing up the mountainside is a great help to those who care to climb above the trail for a higher view of the Falls.

Leons Wilkerson was the leader of the group. Other members and guests were daymeth Wilson & son, Stella Abbott, the Howard Schucks, Clara Shake, Evelyn Emerson, Stephanie Studnicki, Peggy Resnak, Marguerite St Pauley, Audrey Chamness, Margie Hancock, Marion Johnson, Alice Muth, Alma Usenius, and Paul Leader. ......Leons Wilkerson.

CASTLE MOUNTAIN

Eleven hardy souls gathered at the Eagle River Shopping Center on the Saturday evening of May 16th. This crew drove to the base of Castle Mountain at Mile 76, Richardson Highway, where the hikers walked into the Pichler cabin while the four climbers drove onward and camped at the old strip coal mine. On Sunday, the hikers scouted out new trails and generally explored the area while the climbers sought a route to the top. After crossing a large snowfield, they pushed up a steep gulley to the top. The climb was moderately difficult. The register can was deposited by 1:00 and the hikers rejoined by 4:00. The rock there is not dafe for pitons.... NORM PICHLER.

"CANNY MOUNTAL NEER"

He knows the mountain passes, so Climbs not, nor leaps crevasses, But sits and waits and will not go Until the mountain passes.

PORTAGE CABIN SITE

Situated above timber on a small mountain overlooking Portage Glacier is a magnificient location to build NCANs first alpine hut. From here, countless climbs and hikes can begin and it reads to used for ski-ing in the winter. The location is about an inverse drive and a half-hour hike from Anchorage. The problems facinf us are nil. All we must do is obtain the land, make a trail and build the cabin. An engineer reconsistance party is scheduled to visit the site in gune and a full report, with photos, will be smade at the July meeting. Now please don't get immpatient, we must plan first. We'll hit this with a bang and have it ready by Fall, 1980.

MOUNT CARPATHIAN

The Knehorage Daily Times printed pictures of Ted Barrett, Keith Hart end Matt hitsch climbing a 6,000 foot mountain near Portage and Skookum Glaciers on May 7th. It was a large spread of six pictured showing the three men in action and the accompanying paragraphs identified them sa mambers of MCA. To date, 7E Ed has not had a first hand report from the boys.

FROM THE SOUTH 48

John I. Shonle wo requested information and a support party agreement for McKinley wrote that due to pressures to complete his PhD thesis he is forced to cancel out this year. John thanks us for our assistence and hopes that it's only a postponement.

THIS IS HOW A MOUNTAIN IS NAMED

The Daily News printed an article on the "Woman's Page" about a Mrs Ollie A. Tower who decided to name a mountain she has admired since her arrival in Alaska. It took six years beginning with filling out an application, being put off by the head of the Burcau of Geographic Names in WashDC, who felt the name was more than the mountain deserved, placing the name before the Alaska State Senate who requested the Domestic Names Committee to approve it, and finally having the Board of Geographic Names consent. The mountain, 4,204 ft high, North of Eagle River - the name "Magnificent Mount". We wonder if Barrett, Hart and Nitsch will have the pershitence to make their name possible.

AMERICAN YOUTH HOSTELS

A gentleman by the name of J.W. Baptinski approached ye ed last month. He's working with several organizations to establish a Hosteling system here in Alaska. Europe has a very excellent system and the Southern states have started. Questions will be gladly answered.

IN CLOSING

After the execellent work by Gwy Wilson and all the contributors, old Johnnie had to louse it up by hunt and pecking it. Troutchen let him down at the last minute by bunging up her Y, U, H, J, N, M finger.
